

A Note From Our ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

Dear Friends of the Santa Cruz Chorale,

Please make note of the changed schedule this year.
After my hard work preparing the German soccer team last season, I need to schedule knee surgery and must leave promptly after our April concert.

—Christian Grube

Christian Grube, the Chorale's artistic director, is Emeritus Professor of Choral Conducting at the Berlin University of Arts. His choirs are known for their superb sound, impeccable intonation, broad range of dynamic expression, and ability to interpret the most diverse styles.
They have been praised for their rendition of motets, madrigals and masses of the Renaissance, and also for their performances of romantic and modern choral works. On one of the three U.S. tours of his Chamber Choir, the reviewer of the Washington Post called the performance in Washington, D.C., "the best choral concert I have heard this year."

The Santa Cruz Chorale

SEASON 32  2014-2015

🕯 Saturday, December 20, 2014, 8:00pm

🕯 Sunday, December 21, 2014, 4:00pm

Holy Cross Church
123 High Street, Santa Cruz

In keeping with the tradition of recent years, the Chorale's Christmas concert presents musical gems from centuries past, as well as contemporary interpretations of the season's message. Three of Claudio Monteverdi's Psalm settings for choir, instrumentalists, and soloists recreate the festive atmosphere of a Renaissance Christmas, and compositions by Morten Lauridsen and Eric Whitacre bring us back to the twentieth century. Carols old and new, and from many countries, conclude the concert.

This mixed ensemble, based in San Jose, was founded in 2012 and has delighted audiences of all ages with diverse and exciting programs since their inception. They will warm your heart with Randall Thompson's Alleluia and shine light into your soul with This Little Light of Mine by Moses Hogan.

Aside from The Four Seasons, probably Antonio Vivaldi's best known composition is his Gloria in D-major for choir, orchestra, and soloists. The Chorale's program Viva Vivaldi! presents this festive work, which charms audiences the world over.
